

NINE POINTED STAR

Simon:

I have been pondering on my own a while, but I stumbled upon something which I found worth sharing. As a picture was posted of the October Eclipse this year recently, I thought that the geometry in it really looked interesting and I decided to draw the lines in order to understand it better.

The idealized Structure is an octadecagon, which to me is the main geometric structure, although it seems, that the 9 Band of lights shape a second important geometry on top of that: The Enneagon, with the Star of Goliath inside of it.

The way I drew the band of lights, you actually end up with 2 Enneagon's. I marked the Star of Goliath in red in the middle.

The number 18 reminded me of the Flower of life and the nonagon made me remember Kevin's Presentation again (part 3).

To understand my thought process we have to first remind ourselves that this is a leap year.

For anyone that watched Kevin's presentation and maybe even watched the video where it was stated, that this year would be a switch of the main timelines (Fibonacci Spiral to Krystal Spiral) will understand why I had to smile.

Kevin proposed the Nonagon as the perfect template of a spiral with 9 axis to organically evolve from and it seems that someone took note and decided that neither Krystal nor Fibonacci are worth taking on.

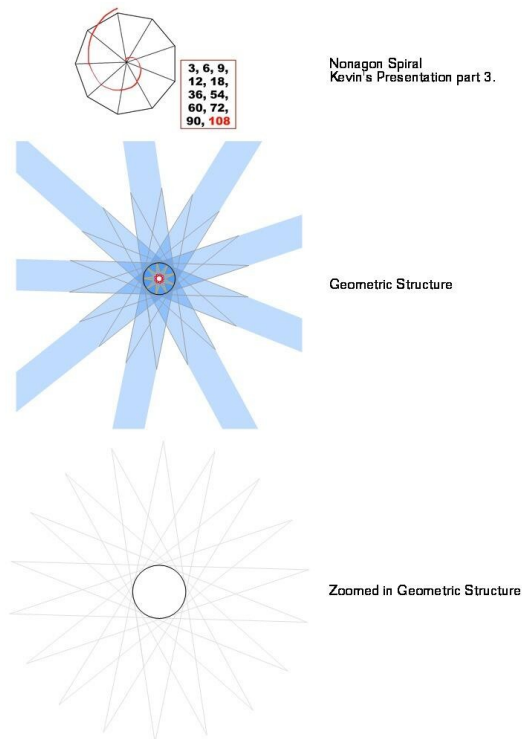

It is a great example of Triality expressed by nature.

There is another trinity inside the structure formed by the 9 band of lights. It seems that they combine 2 vertices (Dual-Pairs) of the octadecagon with a ray, which kind of represents the one on one with the one.

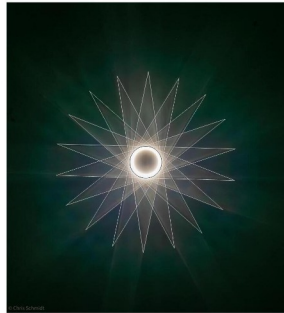

If time allows I might expand on that further, because it is a good starting point for a pondering. Also this made me think of the recent discussions about a "new" calendar and the question if that is "indicative" to the event that just happened.

Is the geometric Structure mentioned above static, or is it actually spiralling towards us?

The Star of Inglii is the main symbol of the Old Faith in the past and nowadays. The main symbol (on pic1) symbolizes not only the the Primary Pure World – the Primary Fire of the God's Creation and the Bright World of Yarila Sun, but also the the white man, descendant of the Ancient Light Gods. The three triangles symbolizes the Divine Beginning, the Great triality (the latter word in Russian literary means “three heads” - Великий Триглав) that protect the God World (Yavi, Navi, Slavi, Pravi). The outer circle framing the triangles represents the Whole Birth-giving Ingliya, and the space inside of the circle speaks about the unity with the Creator – The Great Ra-M-Ha. The three triangles symbolizes the Beginning of Man meaning Healthy Body, Strong Spirit and Light Soul, and the internal space the triangles form represents the Pure Conscience. The internal part of the circle – the infinite space represents multi faced World, in which lives and creates the descendant of the Ancient Gods – the Man. The three triangles symbolizes also the Beginning of Nature – meaning Earth, Water and Fire. The internal part symbolizes the Pure Svarga, i.e. the Sky. Sometime additional symbols were added.

On pic 2 – The Ancient Sward, turned down, representing the Ancient Wisdom. The people that wear it are members of the Slav and Aryan communities., in which the ancient wisdom is passed from generation to generation.

On pic 3 the symbol is called perunitsa and is the symbol of Perun (the name is derived from the name of Perun) and symbolized Perun's protection and patronage. People that wear this symbol are members of communities that worship God Perun, patron of the Slavic kins.

On pic 4 – a swastika symbol is added and called an Amulet of Happiness., in the past the ordinary people called it the Mother of Gods. Thus symbol wear the people from Slav Aryan communities in which the different forms of ancient culture and transitions are kept and passed from generation to generation. The word svastika (сва-с-тика) means that came from the stars ("sva/сва" means sky, "s/c" signifies direction "tika/тика" means movement, current, advent)

The Star of Inglii is also part of the Coat of Arms of Belovodiya, which is this one.
