

The FIELD

The phrase 'the field' has been appearing to me quite a lot these past few days and the penultimate piece from Thursday's show jumped out at me. I first encountered this while studying for the Growing Food group at the TPC forum. Dan Kitteridge mentioned a book called 'The Field' and most would think he was referring to a book about farming. It is not. It is a book about 'the field' or 'matrix' that we are immersed in. The following are aspects of the field that I have uncovered so far. I have not had time to do more than a quick skim of the "Intention Experiment" book, so if you have anything to share on these books, please post them, good or bad.

The Field: The Quest for the Secret Force of the Universe

Lynne documented discoveries that point to the existence of a quantum energy field [ether anyone]. "The Field" created a picture of an interconnected universe and a scientific explanation for many of the most profound human mysteries, from alternative medicine and spiritual healing to extrasensory perception and the collective unconscious. She uncovers that on our most fundamental level, the human mind and body are not distinct and separate from their environment but a packet of pulsating power constantly interacting with this vast energy sea.

The Intention Experiment

"The Intention Experiment" demonstrates that "thought is a thing that affects other things." Thought generates its own palpable energy that you can use to improve your life, to help others around you, and to change the world. Lynne sets out to determine the effects of focused group intention on scientifically quantifiable targets — animal, plant, and human. She offers a practical program to get in touch with your own thoughts, to increase the activity and strength of your intentions, and to begin achieving real change in your life. After you've begun to realize the amazing potential of focused intention, and the times when it is most powerful, McTaggart invites you to participate in an unprecedented experiment: Using "The Intention Experiment" website to coordinate your involvement and track results, you and other participants around the world will focus your power of intention on specific targets, giving you the opportunity to become a part of scientific history.

The Power of Eight: Harnessing the Miraculous Energies of a Small Group to Heal Others, Your Life, and the World

What we send out into the universe comes back to us, magnified. Although the power of intention—the energy of positive thoughts—is widely accepted as an influential force in transforming lives, the exponential power of group intention has never been explored, until now. McTaggart, an expert on the science of spirituality, reveals her remarkable findings from ten years of experiments about how group intention can heal our lives—and change the world for the better. Drawing on hundreds of case studies, the latest brain research, and dozens of McTaggart's own university studies, The Power of Eight provides solid evidence showing that there is such a thing as a collective consciousness. Now you can learn to use it and unleash the power you hold inside of you to heal your own life.

These 3 books could help us to experience tangible proof that the ether does exist. But why did science ridicule and shame those pioneers in the 'field' of ether science into oblivion? At the current level of consciousness, the mere mention of ether returns snickers, laughter and instant 'closure' to almost everyone. Why?

The ancient cosmologists believed in ether. It was defined as the element that filled all space beyond the sphere of the moon, constituting the substance of the stars and planets. It was also known as the fifth element. Do you remember the movie, The Fifth Element. Wasn't that movie about the search for an all powerful weapon and in the end it turned out to be a human woman?

But there is a group that does not snicker. The Kabbalists believe in something called the tree of life. At the top of middle pillar of the tree of life is a crown. It is called k-ETHER. Now to them, kETHER represents unity with the creator. Thomas shared the train track optical illusion on the show. If you look down a long flat straight set of train tracks, the image of the tracks merge to a single point in the far distance. Now from the observer, one can think going away from me, outward, the 'universe' is contracting, because in the distance, it merges to a point. But the observer, can also think everything is expanding because in the distance, it was a point but here where I am it is spaced out and therefore expanding. The same is applied to Kabbalists. One camp thinks 'the creator' using kETHER, aka supreme will, aka infinite will, is expanding/radiating/emanating and another camp thinks it is contracting/concentrating. They both could be looking down the tracks and see what they want to see.

There is another point of view to this. Our sun, the other stars, the galactic core, etc, take spirit (non-physical, the ether) and drop it to the level of matter (condensation). In the process of doing this an enormous amount of free energy is released. This energy and matter are seeded throughout the universe to be used by consciousness to create life. The theory goes that at the heart of the planet, a similar process is ongoing. The free charge from the sun/star/galactic code is condensed into denser and denser matter and those are distributed throughout the planet to be used by life (volcanoes). On the flip side, 'black holes' reverse this process. They absorb matter and release it as spirit, aka, the white hole in another universe or dimension.

As an aside, some of you may remember that back in the 80's, we had what was called 'local area networks' or LAN's. A LAN was used to connect a network of computers in a building so they could share data and resources (printers, etc). The technology to do this was called ETHER-net and it was created by Robert M. Metcalfe (born in NY) working for Xerox PARC. The first live test was done on 11.11.73 and was important because of its speed potentials. As I think about it, the name is very odd because before wifi, all ethernet connections were wired, specifically coaxial cables. There is nothing etheric about it, not at the physical level that is. The way a coaxial cable works is a data is encoded as a wave and sent down the cable. But what if it was called ETHERnet because it was the bridge from physical to non-physical?

It is also interesting to note that to the Kabbalists, the kETHER is INFINITE will. McTaggart's last book was the power of EIGHT. When you turn an 8 ninety degrees, you get the infinity symbol. Wasn't the infinity symbol used in "The 100" series to reference the city of 'white light', aka 'the cloud'. What if that has another hidden meaning. If you take the power of 8, which according to McTaggart is an optimal amount of coherent intent to invoke change, and you 'perturb' it 90 degrees, can it be used to control people? I did find this interesting quote: "In Mythology there is a creation myth about a race called the 'El', Elohim, or Shining Ones. Allegedly when they shift consciousness from one reality to another, or one grid to another, they shift at 90° angles - hence '90° of separation' - Rick Beaumont.

You probably noticed, kETHER has a k and the question is, why was the k dropped or are these 2 completely different words.

The letter K in our Latin english alphabet is derived from KAPPA, the Greek letter. Kappa is related to qôp (or qôph or kuf) and is the 19th letter in the hebrew alphabet. It has a few literal meanings. They are 'back of the head', 'eye of the needle' and 'monkey'. The back of the head and eye of the needle are closely related to the shape of the symbol over time. What stands alone is monkey. It is interesting because a monkey is a creature which resembles a human but is purely animalistic, with none of the higher capacities of a human. Hmm. Didn't Boris Johnson mention a KAPPA variant in his speech recently? Does that mean kappa variant is really 'the monkey' variant?

The qôp (or qôph or kuf) letter in hebrew means unholiness. Taken stroke for stroke, the actual symbol means unholy thoughts, speech and actions. In hebrew gematria qôp = 100, hmm, the 100 series anyone? In the talmud, there is passage that tells of a time when ONE HUNDRED of King David's soldiers would perish daily from an epidemic.

The symbol for kappa, was once koppa which is . Back in 1751, Carl Linnaeus instigated a nomenclature for describing the sex of plants and animals. If you take a koppa symbol and add a cross at 90 degrees, you get the female symbol . If you take the female symbol and add HORNS, you get a symbol for a HYBRID, . The hybrid symbol was quickly changed to an x. The koppa symbol, , was dropped a long time ago in alphabets but is still in use to represent a Greek number. That number is 90!

So, taking the woman symbol and adding horns was an original symbol for a hybrid. The most popular horned hybrid entity throughout the occult, historically has been the horned goat man (god of all things??). In our 'holy books' and mythology, sat-an is represented with horns and sometimes as a goat-hybrid. There is a goat hybrid in Greek mythology named PAN.

That takes me back to the word pandemic. The etymology for pandemic states the word comes from PAN = pertaining to all, and DEMOTIC = 'belonging to the people'. This seems like an unlikely pairing for a disease that encompasses the globe. Especially since demotic comes from da which meant divide. DA was divide. DAI-MON was divider. The greeks changed DAIMON to deity, lesser god or guiding spirit. Then with latin, it was changed to daemon which meant spirit. Then in the 1200's it became demon, an evil spirit or devil.

So, PAN-DEMIC could be PAN-DEMONIC if you remove the ON. ON had the meaning 'in a position to cover' or 'aware', as in 'I am ON TO YOU'. So, PAN-DEMIC, could be in reference to the 'uncovering of pan or satan'.

No matter what they want it to mean, the original point of The Field/Ether is that our combined psi-FIELD can be used to strengthen the reality we want to experience. I personally think of it this way. All time exists at once. Therefore ALL experiences exist at once. I ask to be taken to the experience that I wish to partake in by applying my intention in a coherent and positive manner. If done properly and letting go, the universe moves in my desired direction. What do you wish to experience?
